Challenge.

After the global outbreak of COVID-19, MedTech was prompted to act fast to find a suitable desk management solution for its office in Brussels, Belgium. After the government announced new guidelines around returning to work, a solution was required that could be implemented quickly so that their employees could return to the office safely, whilst ensuring social distancing was adhered to. It was of utmost importance that the employees felt safe coming back to work and the right measures were in place.

Solution.

MedTech began its search for a workspace management solution so they could return to work safely. After evaluating five technology providers, Condeco came out on top and proved to be the perfect solution for MedTech. The simple-to-use desk management solution meant they would be able to control capacity by managing the number of employees in the office at any given time, whilst adhering to government guidelines on social distancing.

Condeco's desk management solution meant employees would have the flexibility to choose which days they would come into the office to work. The solution contains graphical floor plans on the web interface with the ability to search for colleagues so MedTech employees would easily be able to see which days their teammates would be in the office working, and which they would be working remotely.
